BU275 Chapter 2: Linear Programming: Model Formulation and Graphical Solution

- Objectives of a business frequently are to maximize profit or minimize cost
  - Subject to restrictions placed on manager by operating environment (e.g. time, labour, energy, material, money, or restrictive guidelines like certain specifications)
- Linear Programming: Model that consists of linear relationships representing a firm's decisions, given an objective and resource constraints
  - Linear – functional relationships in mathematical models are linear
  - Program – solution technique consists of predetermined mathematical steps
- 3 steps in applying linear programming technique:
  1. Program must be identified as being solvable by linear programming
  2. Unstructured program must be formulated as a mathematical model
  3. Model must be solved by using established mathematical techniques

Model Formulation

- Model components include decision variables, objective function, and model constraints (consists of decision variables and parameters)
- Decision Variables: Mathematical symbols that represent levels of activity
- Objective Function: Linear relationship that reflects the objective of an operation in terms of the decision variables; consists of either maximizing or minimizing some value
- Model Constraints: A linear relationship that represents a restriction on decision-making
- Parameters: Numerical values that are included in the objective functions and constraints

A Maximization Model Example

- Linear Programming Model steps:
  1. Define the decision variables
  2. Define the objective function
  3. Define the constraints
- Nonnegativity Constraints: Restrict the decision variables to zero or positive values
- Feasible Solution: Doesn't violate any of the constraints
- Infeasible Solution: Violates at least one of the constraints

Graphical Solutions of Linear Programming Models

- Graphical solutions are limited to linear programming problems with only 2 decision variables
- Graphical method provides a picture of how a solution is obtained for a linear programming problem

Graphical Solution of a Maximization Model

- Constraint lines are plotted as equations
- Feasible solution area is an area on the graph that's bounded by the constraint equations

The Optimal Solution Point

- Optimal Solution: Best feasible solution
